

Concern for the welfare of the Ummah

The Ulama of Deoband had so much concern for the welfare of the Ummah that when the Uthmaani Khilaafat was under attack, they offered their physical and monetary assistance.

They contributed and encouraged their families and communities to do the same. Historians report that they assisted them with up to 2 million rupees at the time. (Based on historical inflation, this would be worth 20 billion rupees (± 3.5 billion rands) today).

Given that Muslims are suffering throughout the world, what are we, as an Ummah, contributing to alleviate their plight?
